Student accommodation

Be prepared for your housing search!

The ideal time to find accommodation is from early July (Bac results) to mid-August

It becomes more difficult at the beginning of the academic year as housing options are more scarce. If you can afford it, we recommend booking accommodation and paying rent for a few extra weeks, even if it is not occupied.

Compiling a housing application

Here is a list of the documents that are usually requested:

- a photocopy of your proof of identity (identity card, passport or residence permit)
- your student card or schooling certificate
- proof of address
- your bank account details
- your employment contract or your most recent pay slips, if applicable.

The list of documents that your physical guarantor will have to provide (or a guarantee certificate if your guarantor is an organization) cf. p14:

- three most recent pay slips plus employer statement
- proof of address
- proof of identity
- latest tax declaration.

To assist you, DossierFacile.fr is a free public service that helps you at every stage of creating your rental application.

Calculating your budget for the 1st month and the rest of the year

It is essential to know your budget and any other expenses to be paid each month in advance so you can choose accommodation within your means. Also, set aside enough money for temporary accommodation when you arrive and the compulsory upfront student accommodation fees.

In the 1st month, you will have to pay the 1st month's rent + the security deposit (one month of rent excluding utilities and service charges) + agency / application fees + furniture if the accommodation is unfurnished + home insurance.

The rest of the year

electricity / gas and internet bills (except in some student residences), and any other expenses that are not related to housing: studies, transport, food costs, recreation, etc. See the budget table on p10

Various tips

Housing location: don't underestimate the time it will take to get from your home to where you study.

Watch out for scams and listings that seem too good to be true (rent that is too cheap for the area, perfect photos, etc.)

When viewing accommodation, have your application ready and with you to save valuable time!

Never pay in cash and don't hand over any money for rent or a security deposit before signing the rental agreement. Also, never send money by postal or money order or similar methods (e.g. Western Union).

Never accept the services of a person offering to sell you a "list of properties" in exchange for money, but with no guarantee of finding accommodation.

Warning! A room of less than 9m² does not qualify for housing benefits provided by the Caf!

Types of accommodation

Private accommodation

This type of accommodation belongs to a private landlord who rents it out either directly or through an estate agency. It can be furnished or unfurnished. It is perfectly possible to co-rent private accommodation with another tenant, provided the landlord agrees.

Rental prices depend on the surface area and location of the accommodation, but remember that students are entitled to housing benefits. The average rent for a studio apartment in the city center is 610 euros in the Toulouse metropolitan area.

Accommodation in a Crous residence

To apply, the first step is to create your student social file at the beginning of the calendar year. This must be done every year on www.messervices.etudiant.gouv.fr.

Next, you will need to submit your housing preferences. Priority is given to scholarship students.

The schedule is available on www.crous-toulouse.fr/logement.

International exchange students should contact the International Relations office of their host institution.

Social housing for students

Social housing (also known as «Hlm» in French) refers to housing units managed by social landlords (such as Promologis, Le Groupe des Chalets / Oh Mon Appart, Toulouse Métropole Habitat, ALTEAL). A social housing unit can be a bedroom, a studio, a one-bedroom apartment (T2), etc., located in a student residence or a mixed-use residence, either as an individual unit or as a shared accommodation.

Any student can apply for social housing by visiting :

www.demandelogement31.fr.

Alternatively, this request can also be made directly at a registration office. The list of registration offices and additional information can be found here: <https://metropole.toulouse.fr/demarches/faire-une-demande-de-logement-social>

Once the application is submitted, the candidate's file is reviewed by a committee responsible for allocating the hou-

A private room

This is a bedroom rented out in an individual's home. The kitchen and bathroom are shared with them and their family. Some may also offer a shared living space, and possibly breakfast and an evening meal.

Please note:

the rental agreement must specify the services provided.

The advantage?

the rent is often cheaper, and you will be eligible for housing benefits provided by the Caf.

Intergenerational housesharing

Intergenerational housing, also known as «Colocation cohabitation intergénérationnelle solidaire», it involves a student and a senior living together in the senior's home, where the senior has an unoccupied room. This type of housing is advantageous both for the student, who, in exchange for more or less important services, benefits from low rent, and sometimes even almost free, and for the senior, who benefits from reassuring company and escapes from their daily isolation. For more information on intergenerational cohabitation, visit the websites 2 associations possibles www.cohabilis.org or www.ensemble2generations.fr

Please note: There are also private student residences, otherwise known as "service re-

Habitat Jeunes residences provided by the Regional Union for Youth Habitat (URHAJ):

These are available to young people aged 16 to 30 who are employed, apprentices, students, trainees or job seekers on benefits. Several types of furnished accommodation are available (studio, one-bedroom flats, etc.) and they can be individual or shared. In Habitat Jeunes residences, various guidance, workshops and activities are available to residents.

Shared housing:

This is one of the cheapest housing options available that also enables you to have a bigger living space. However, you do have to be ready to share common areas on a daily basis (living room, kitchen, bathroom, etc.) as well as the rent and utilities.

Each member of the household must be listed in the rental agreement. If you join a pre-existing flatshare or houseshare, you will need to draft an amendment to the rental agreement.

There are two types of rental agreement for this type of housing :

1. A single rental agreement in which all the members of the household are listed, but be aware of the solidarity clause that binds the tenants together until the end of the contract! This clause stipulates that if you leave the house or flat before the term of the rental agreement, and the other tenants fail to pay all the rent due, you will be liable for the amount owing. The clause ceases to be effective 6 months after the end of your notice period.

2. An individual rental agreement (for each tenant), to which the solidarity clause does not apply; however, the landlord can decide who is allowed to join the household.

Here are some websites with shared housing listings:

Some steps to take before moving in

Before unpacking your things and settling into your new home, there are a few more steps you need to take.

Home insurance

As soon as you have found the right accommodation and before meeting with the landlord to receive the keys, you must take out home insurance. This is compulsory in order to protect you from various risks (fire, water damage, burglary, etc.). You can take out a policy with a mutual insurance company, bank or private insurer.

If you are part of a flatshare or houthare, except for clauses stated in the lease agreement, each tenant needs to take out home insurance.

Tip: choose a comprehensive policy that also includes liability insurance.

French Government creating a centralized webpage providing information to students searching for housing

All the tools to find accommodation, a guarantor, helpful websites, procedures, and financial assistance to help you secure housing:

<https://www.etudiant.gouv.fr/fr>

The guarantor

The guarantor undertakes to pay the rent and utilities and service charges on behalf of the tenant if the latter is unable to do so. This guarantor must be creditworthy, i.e. able to show that they have sufficient income and are capable of assuming this responsibility. This is required by most agencies and landlords.

If no-one can be a guarantor for you, you can apply online for the Visale guarantee, which is a free rental security deposit.

See the Visale guarantee table on p15

If you do not meet the eligibility criteria for one of these guarantees, you can contact a bank or ask your landlord whether they will agree to let you pay several months' rent up front.

The security deposit

You will then have to pay a security deposit that is usually the equivalent of a month's rent excluding utilities and service charges for unfurnished accommodation, and two months for furnished accommodation. It will be returned to you when you move out, but may be deducted from in the event of any damage to the accommodation.

For more information, visit www.caf.fr

L'AVANCE LOCA-PASS® provided by Action Logement, can accompany you to pay this security deposit. See the housing benefits table on p12

The rental agreement

You can now sign your rental agreement (or «lease»), of which each party gets a copy (landlord, tenant, guarantor). It contains all the information about the accommodation you are going to be living in (duration of the rental agreement, contact information of the landlord and the tenant, accommodation type and description, price of rent, and utilities and service charges). It also lists the landlord and tenant's rights and obligations.

Incoming inventory

The day you get the keys to your new home, you will carry out an incoming inventory with the landlord. This is a full and very precise description of the accommodation, drawn up in duplicate.

Be sure to describe any visible damage, even if it is very minor, and keep a copy of this document until the day you move out. On this day, if the exit inventory matches the incoming inventory, your security deposit will be returned to you within one month. If the exit inventory does not match the incoming inventory, the landlord has two months to return your security deposit and the expenses to cover the damage will be deducted.

After the incoming inventory, you can finally get the keys to your new home!

Signing up with providers

As soon as you move in, you will need to open an account in your own name with utility companies (electricity or gas, as the case may be) and an internet provider.

Generally speaking, if you are living in a student residence or renting a private room in an individual's home, these expenses will take the form of a flat rate and are usually included in the rent.

Housing benefits provided by the Caf

Whether you are French or an international student, you can apply for housing benefits provided by the Caf when renting accommodation. This is a monthly payment.

Contact your city council to find out what local services are available (e.g. Instal'Toit, set up by the Toulouse city council)

See the housing benefits table on p12

Work-study trainees / apprentices

Action Logement supports young people under 30, who are in apprenticeship programs within non-agricultural private sector companies, through the MOBILI-JEUNE® assistance program. This program covers a portion of their rent, up to €100 per month. Visit mobilijeune.actionlogement.fr to check your eligibility.

Assistance subject to conditions, available within the limits of the maximum amount set by current regulations, and granted subject to the approval of Action Logement Services.

MOBILI-JEUNE® assistance is a registered trademark on behalf of Action Logement.

For more information on the other benefits offered by Action Logement, visit actionlogement.fr

Furnishing: think second-hand!

In order to save money on furniture, there are various associations, student initiatives and organisations that will allow you to furnish your accommodation more cheaply, e.g. with recycled furniture.

Mou logement : Les éco-gestes du quotidien

Lighting, heating, washing, cooking, and doing the dishes... all these everyday activities can impact your budget and the environment. Adopt simple habits!

Save Energy!

- Turn off the lights when you leave a room.
 - Unplug devices when they're not in use (computer, phone).
 - Use power strips to easily turn off unused equipment.
- Use low-consumption LED bulbs.
Remember to turn off the Wi-Fi at night and/or when you're away

Heating / Thermal Comfort

- Heating accounts for a significant portion of annual energy expenses in a home. Lowering the heating by 1°C can save 7% of energy per year. 19°C is an ideal temperature in winter.
- If you're away all day, lower the thermostat!
- Turn off the heating when you ventilate your home!
- Let light into rooms during the day and close shutters/curtains at night to better retain heat.
- In summer, ventilate at night and close during the day to keep it cool.

Water

- Don't let water run continuously when brushing your teeth, washing, or doing the dishes: on average, 9 liters of water flow from the tap every minute.

- A dripping faucet = 100 liters of water per day, which is over 100 € per year.
- Water leaks (toilet, sink, flush) = 400 liters of water per day, which is over 400 € per year. (Source: Water Agencies - Public Institutions of the Ministry of Sustainable Development)
- Installing aerators on taps can reduce water consumption by 25% – and placing the faucet in the cold position when off prevents calling for hot water each time.
- Fully load washing machines and dishwashers and use eco or cold wash modes.

Waste

- Learn about the recycling system in your area: with the expanded sorting instructions, all plastics/cardboards/papers/metals are recyclable!
- Recycled waste should be placed loose in your bin without a bag.
- Bring your food waste to composters available in parks and gardens or your residence.
- Consider buying in bulk to reduce waste.

Know the Energy Efficiency of Your Home

When renting a home, it is mandatory to provide an Energy Performance Certificate (EPC) less than 10 years old, conducted by a professional. This document allows you to know if your home is energy-efficient and environmentally friendly. It also provides an estimate of annual housing costs based on your home's characteristics and for standard usage in five areas (heating, hot water, air conditioning, lighting, and auxiliary).
